

PSY 410 MORAL PSYCHOLOGY

Course Syllabus (CRN: 34718)

MW 4:00 – 5:20 PM

Esslinger 105,
University of Oregon

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Moral psychology is the scientific study of how we determine right from wrong, act or fail to act on those standards, judge and punish others for their moral transgressions, and throughout, maintain that we personally are good, even when our actions suggest otherwise. This course explores topics such as moral licensing and hypocrisy, egoism and altruism, empathy and its limits, blame and moral responsibility, the role of intuition versus reason in moral judgment, moral character evaluation, and moral advancement. There are many ways to approach the study of moral psychology. This course draws most heavily from insights from social psychology research, and therefore most topics covered pertain to morality within social contexts, e.g., thinking about, reacting to, influencing, and judging the (im)moral behavior and character of others. However, the course is interdisciplinary in nature, drawing from ideas and research from philosophy, behavioral economics, cognitive psychology, personality psychology, developmental psychology, neuroscience, biology, and other social science fields.

CONTACTING US

Please don't hesitate to contact us if you have any questions or concerns! We are always happy to help. When you e-mail us, please add PSY410 in the subject line (e.g., "PSY410 exam question") so that we know which class you are from (I teach 3 classes/term with ~350 students, so this really helps!). You should e-mail Fiona about exams and Sarah about everything else. If you e-mail us, you can expect to receive a response within 2 business days, and typically earlier. If we do not respond to your email within 2 business days, please resend it (making sure PSY410 is in the title) because we may have not received it.

COURSE MATERIALS

There is no assigned textbook for this course. All readings will be posted on Canvas at the beginning of the course, including a mixture of empirical articles that conduct original research and review articles that synthesize the research of many scientists. Some review articles ("opinion" articles) offer conjecture from researchers that go beyond the facts of what they or others have observed. Occasionally the readings will be supplemented with short videos or podcast episodes. To maximize your understanding and participation in lectures and discussions, I strongly recommend completing the assigned readings before the class they correspond to. Learning to read psychology articles can be challenging, as they are often written for an audience familiar with the specialized terminology of the subfield who have advanced knowledge of journal article structure and customs. It takes effort and practice to become proficient, but the payoff is well worth it. The readings for this course vary in difficulty—some are written for a general audience, while others are intended for peers in the field. To set yourself up for success, make sure to give yourself at least an hour (and two for longer sets) to complete each set of readings.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

In this course, you will be developing important skills that are valuable outside of university, like introspection, critical thinking, writing, and speaking. You will also be working to improve skills that are necessary to be a consumer and/or producer of research, like reading, communicating about, and critically evaluating psychology research. Upon completion of this course, you will be able to (1) describe and identify important theories and research findings in moral psychology, (2) read novel research in moral psychology from academic journals, and (3) apply moral psychology theory and research findings to experiences in your life.

COURSE MODALITY

This is an in-person course with a lot of opportunities to discuss the material with other students and with the entire class. Discussion and active retrieval are necessary components of encoding information into long term memory, and the material in this course begs to be discussed. Every Monday, we will have an interactive lecture. Every Wednesday (except the week of Memorial Day), we will have a ~30-minute mini-lecture and then break out into smaller groups to discuss a set of discussion questions. Unlike asynchronous online/ASYNC WEB courses, we will meet during scheduled class meeting times in Esslinger 105, which is located on University St. near the Student Rec Center. I will accommodate absences as described in the Participation section below. I understand that a course that requires active participation is not for everyone. If you need additional flexibility, UO encourages you to consider ASYNC WEB courses. If you need accommodation related to a medical or other disability, you can request those by working with the Accessible Education Center.

ESTIMATED STUDENT WORKLOAD

When you complete this course, you will earn 4 credits toward your degree. A four-credit course from the University of Oregon is equivalent to 120 hours of work across the term, or 12 hours per week for 10 weeks. You will spend 30 hours in class, 40 hours on readings (for about 4 hours per week), and the remaining 50 hours completing take home assignments (reading quizzes, research paper, exams).

TECHNICAL REQUIREMENTS

Information and communication outside of class time will occur on our Canvas page. To access our course Canvas site, log into Canvas using your DuckID. If you have questions about using Canvas, visit the Canvas support page. Canvas and Technology Support also is available by phone (541-346-4357) or by live chat on the Live Help webpage.

GRADING

Your learning will be assessed through take-home case study exams (30% of your grade), multiple-choice online reading and lecture quizzes (30% of your grade), a research paper investigating a moral psychology question (30% of your grade), and participation in class (10% of your grade).

Take-Home Exams (x2)	30%
Quizzes (x4, one dropped)	30%
Research Paper	30%
Course Participation	10%

The following grid provides the letter grade associated with each percent. If you are within .5% of a grade category (e.g., 89.5%), your grade will be rounded up if you have a 100% in the course participation category. A student may be assigned an "A+" for a final grade if they demonstrate exemplary understanding of the course material across all assessments (> 97% on all four grade categories).

A 93-100%	B 83-86.99%	C 73-76.99%	D 63-66.99%
A- 90-92.99%	B- 80-82.99%	C- 70-72.99%	D- 60-62.99%
B+ 87-89.99%	C+ 77-79.99%	D+ 67-69.99%	F 59.99% or below

TAKE-HOME EXAMS

There are two take-home exams for this course that will test your ability to apply moral psychology theories and findings to real world case studies. The exams are untimed, and you are encouraged to use notes, readings, and the internet to complete them, but the work you submit must be your own (i.e., no collaboration with other students). In 5 essays questions, you will research given case studies and apply what you are learning in class readings, lecture, and discussions to gain a deeper understanding of each case. For instance, I may ask you to research a specific case of fraud and ask you to apply course concepts to better understand why the fraud occurred. Take-home exams are due on Canvas Fridays at 5pm.

QUIZZES

To provide you with real-time feedback of how well you are understanding theories and findings from readings, lecture, and discussion, there will be four multiple-choice quizzes across the term. Each quiz contains 20 questions covering content since the last quiz. The quizzes are untimed, and you are encouraged to use your notes and readings to complete them, but the work you submit must be your own (i.e., no collaboration with other students or the internet, including AI). Your final quiz grade will drop the lowest score of the four quizzes. Quizzes are due on Canvas Fridays at 5pm.

RESEARCH PAPER

The purpose of the research paper (4-6 paged double spaced) is to apply theories and findings you've learned in the course while diving deeper into a topic of personal interest. You will choose a research topic, search for and read relevant research on the topic, identify a research question, and write a paper describing the research findings and how they answer or fail to answer your research question. You will turn in a topic proposal outlining your chosen research question and plan for the structure of your paper Week 3 (5 points), a draft of your paper for peer review Week 6 (5 points), a peer review of another student's paper Week 7 (5 points), and a final draft Week 9 (100 points).

You may choose one of the following topics (which you may interpret in several ways) for inspiration, or an alternate, equivalently rigorous topic that you discuss with the instructor (e.g., e-mail, office hours) prior to turning in your paper:

- (a) Study the moral behavior and/or moral judgments of a subgroup of people or entities (e.g., AI, psychopaths, moral exemplars, infants, small children, nonhuman animals, people with a psychological disorder). How and/or why do they differ from the average human adult?
- (b) Investigate how a specific factor (e.g., substance use, interpersonal attraction, emotional state, relationship closeness) influences moral behavior and/or moral judgment. How and/or why does the factor improve or worsen moral behavior and and/or moral judgment?

Your paper should include an introduction, body, and conclusion. In the introduction (1-2 paragraphs), pose a research question and explain its importance. At the end of this section, give a one single sentence thesis or "answer" to your research question (e.g., if your question is "does believing in God make us good or bad?", your thesis may be something like "a belief in God primarily makes us good because X, Y, and Z," "a belief in God only makes us good when X, Y, Z conditions are met," or "a belief in God makes us good unless X, Y, and Z occur.") An excellent thesis is typically one that is nuanced, i.e., it describes some limit or constraint rather than just giving a "yes" or "no" answer. Next, the body of the paper (2+ pages) provides evidence for your thesis. You should cite at least 5 articles from peer-reviewed scientific journals to support your thesis. Finally, the conclusion (1-3 paragraphs) should briefly summarize the important points in the paper, and then describe what there is still left to learn about the topic. In the final paragraph, you may want to describe limitations of the current research, recommend future directions, and/or explain how you would design a study to test a future direction. In your final paper, please use APA format, including proper in-text citations and a reference page that does not count towards page length. Successful papers will provide a nuanced and logical understanding of the topic, strong empirical evidence to support claims and arguments, and thoughtful discussion of the strengths and limitations of psychological research in answering big, important questions.

PARTICIPATION & ABSENCES

Participation includes the Syllabus Quiz (4 points) and class attendance (16 points). Attendance will be tracked via the iClicker attendance feature (you do not need to buy a subscription to use this feature, you just need a free iClicker account). Prior to week 2, you'll need to (1) make an iClicker student account (if you don't already have one), and (2) add our class. At the beginning of each class, you will be able to "check in" on your computer or with the mobile iClicker app. You may miss 3 classes without penalty. Missing classes due to a religious observance, specific AEC accommodation, military deployment, or a University-sponsored event with signed documentation do not count toward your three absences. Difficult or complex situations that impact attendance will occur for many of us during a term. This reason-neutral policy means that absences are available both for students who do want to reach out about their experiences and students who do not. If you are feeling ill, please stay home and use one of your three absences. Please note that I cannot excuse your absence if you e-mail me a reason outside of these listed reasons, since you are asking me to ignore university policy.

LATE ASSIGNMENT POLICY

To make it easy to remember, assignments in this course are always due Fridays at 5pm. In the case that you fall ill or otherwise cannot complete your work on time, I have built flexibility into the course in the following ways:

- All students have one free, no-questions-asked extension to turn in an assignment late for any reason, no questions asked. If you wish to use your extension, comment on the assignment "I am using my one free extension" when you submit it to Canvas. No need to e-mail me that you're using your extension unless you can't figure out how to comment on the assignment. Note that you cannot use your extension on the draft for peer review, peer review, or the final exam, so plan ahead and don't save these assignments until late minute!
- Without the late pass, if an assignment is turned in more than 24 hours after the due date, the assignment will be marked off 5% (max score is now 95%). If 48 hours have passed, the assignment will be marked off 10% (max score is now 90%). Anything after 72 hours will receive the max late penalty of 15% off (max score is now 85%). All late work must be turned in by the last day of Week 10 of classes (Friday June 6th by 5pm) to ensure that all assignments can be graded before the grading deadline. Canvas will lock you out of submitting assignments at that time. Note that late assignments beyond 72 hours on the draft for peer review, peer review, or the final exam will incur a permanent 0 in the grade book, so plan ahead and don't save these assignments until late minute!

ACCESS & ACCOMMODATIONS

The University of Oregon and I are dedicated to fostering inclusive, equitable, and accessible learning environments for all students. The Accessible Education Center (AEC) assists students with disabilities in reducing barriers in the educational experience. You may be eligible for accommodations for a variety of disabilities – apparent disabilities, such as a mobility or physical disability, or non-apparent disabilities, such as chronic illnesses or psychological disabilities. If you have or think you have a disability and experience academic barriers, please contact the Accessible Education Center (Location: 360 Oregon Hall; 541-346-1155; uoaec@uoregon.edu) to discuss appropriate accommodations or support. The details of your disability will be kept confidential with the AEC and you are not expected to share this information with others. However, I invite you to discuss any approved accommodations or access needs at any time with me.

ACCOMMODATIONS FOR RELIGIOUS OBSERVANCES

The University of Oregon respects the right of all students to observe their religious holidays, and will make reasonable accommodations, upon request, for these observances. If you need an extension on an assignment this term because of a religious obligation or observance, please fill out the Student Religious Accommodation Request form and send it to me within the first weeks of the course so we can make arrangements in advance.

INTERESTED IN GRADUATE SCHOOL IN SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGY?

Please don't hesitate to come to office hours if you'd like to talk to me about graduate school in psychology. I am a recent (Summer 2024) graduate of UO's PhD program in Social Psychology and am always happy to share my experience. I can't speak too much to graduate school in mental health fields (more so to research psychology), but I can direct you to people who can!

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE USE

You are permitted (and encouraged) to use AI tools (e.g., ChatGPT, Grammarly) to assist with brainstorming topic ideas or refining your writing. However, keep in mind that AI can and often does provide inaccurate or overly simplistic responses, and you are responsible for the accuracy and quality of the work that you submit. If you choose to use these tools, then they must not prevent you from achieving the learning goals of the course. Relying on AI to think for you – such as copying a response directly from ChatGPT and submitting it as your own -- will hinder your learning and therefore is considered a violation of the academic integrity policy for this course.

ACADEMIC DISHONESTY

Any form of academic dishonesty, including getting outside help on assignments, plagiarizing of any kind, improper use of AI (as outlined in the policy above), or lying to the instructor or a GTF will not be tolerated in this class. Please complete any assignments labeled "quiz" or "exam" completely on your own, without the use of AI, the internet, or other students. If you have questions about what is considered academic dishonesty for this course, or if you are struggling with your coursework to the point that you feel you have no choice but to violate our academic integrity policy, please reach out to the instructor, the AEC, and/ or the dean of students. If I detect any academic dishonesty, I will follow the procedure to handle misconduct as outlined by the University, meaning that instances of suspected cheating or plagiarizing will be reported to the University.

CLASSROOM CLIMATE

While studying moral psychology, we are bound to hear from others who do not agree with our moral values, which will cause us to feel deeply uncomfortable. There's nothing we hold more sacred than our moral beliefs. I do not expect to agree with you on everything, and I do not expect you to agree with your classmates on everything. We are a group with diverse backgrounds and experiences. You will never be graded on your moral views and opinions, only the rigor of psychological evidence you provide to support your claims and arguments. In discussion, we must make it a priority that each person in this class has the opportunity to speak and challenge each other's ideas.

For discussions, we will follow the guidelines outlined below (which I am happy to add to). Continued enrollment in the course indicates agreement that you will abide by these guidelines.

- (1) Treat others with respect, even when you disagree with them about their ideas or beliefs. For instance, instead of attacking the speaker (e.g., "you are wrong and dumb for thinking that"), focus on disagreeing with the claim or idea by providing contradictory research findings or personal experiences.
- (2) Listening is just as important as sharing your ideas. Make sure to allow others the chance to contribute to the conversation. If you have been speaking too much (or too little), make sure to adjust accordingly so that we hear from a lot of different perspectives.
- (3) Allow others (and yourself) to make mistakes and learn from them. We don't always say what we mean, and there are things we don't know yet. Open yourself up to learning new things about yourself and give others the space to do the same.

If you do not feel comfortable participating in a class discussion or believe there is more that I could be doing to promote a more effective learning environment, I urge you to come talk to me. I will always listen to your concerns with respect and an open mind and will make adjustments when appropriate.

YOUR WELLBEING

During your college experience, you may feel overwhelmed or stressed, experience anxiety or depression, struggle with relationships, or just need help navigating challenges in your life. If you're facing such challenges, you don't need to handle them on your own--there's help and support on campus. Getting help is a courageous thing to do—for yourself and those you care about. University Health Services helps students cope with difficult emotions and life stressors. If you need general resources on coping with stress or want to talk with another student who has been in the same place as you, visit the Duck Nest (located in the EMU on the ground floor) and get help from one of the specially trained Peer Wellness Advocates. University Counseling Services (UCS) has a team of dedicated staff members to support you with your concerns, many of whom can provide identity-based support. All clinical services are free and confidential. Find out more at counseling.uoregon.edu or by calling 541-346-3227 (anytime UCS is closed, the After-Hours Support and Crisis Line is available by calling this same number).

BASIC NEEDS

Being able to meet your basic needs is foundational to your success as a student. If you are having difficulty affording food, don't have a stable, safe place to live, or are struggling to meet another need, visit the UO Basic Needs Resource page for information on how to get support. They have information food, housing, healthcare, childcare, transportation, technology, finances (including emergency funds), and legal support. If your need is urgent, please contact the Care and Advocacy Program by calling 541-346-3216, filling out the Community Care and Support form, or by scheduling an appointment with an advocate.

ACADEMIC DISRUPTION DUE TO CAMPUS EMERGENCY

In the event of a campus emergency that disrupts academic activities, course requirements, deadlines, and grading percentages are subject to change. Information about changes in this course will be communicated as soon as possible by email, and on Canvas. If we are not able to meet face-to-face, students should immediately log onto Canvas and read any announcements and/or access alternative assignments. Students are also expected to continue coursework as outlined in this syllabus or other instructions on Canvas.

ACADEMIC DISRUPTION DUE TO CAMPUS EMERGENCY

It is generally expected that class will meet unless the University is officially closed for inclement weather. If it becomes necessary to cancel class while the University remains open, this will be announced on Canvas and by email. Updates on inclement weather and closure are also communicated as described on the Inclement Weather webpage.

REPORTING OBLIGATIONS

I am a designated reporter. For information about my reporting obligations as an employee, please see Employee Reporting Obligations on the Office of Investigations and Civil Rights Compliance (OICRC) website. Students experiencing sex- or gender-based discrimination, harassment or violence should call the 24-7 hotline 541-346-SAFE [7244] or visit safe.uoregon.edu for help. Students experiencing all forms of prohibited discrimination or harassment may contact the Dean of Students Office at 541-346-3216 or the non-confidential Title IX Coordinator/OICRC at 541-346-3123 to request information and resources. Students are not required to participate in an investigation to receive support, including requesting academic supportive measures. Additional resources are available at investigations.uoregon.edu/how-get-support. I am also a mandatory reporter of child abuse. Please find more information at Mandatory Reporting of Child Abuse and Neglect.
